A man named McCormick was argued that he was the friend and fool of Jim Hill. This man McCormick was on a platform speaking in his defense one night and the most was his long flowing beard. After reaching the climax in his address and wanting to impress his audience with the idea that he was in no way connected with Hill and the railroad scheme, he exclaimed: "Do I look like a man who could be bought by Jim Hill:"

The red macaw who has the run of the screened-in verandahs and kitchen, many times has called me hot-foot from the woods with his ringing "Helgh-ho." He starts the dogs barking and the black Orpingtons cackling with his perfect imitations. He often deceives us by rapping on the window panes with his bill, and with the same ivery beak cracks peach-stones and butternuts. When mad he drives cats, dogs and humans out of doors with busy proboscis and fiendish shrieks. Though on occasion he can coo, and wheedle, and whistle, yet he usually makes more noise than a talking machine grinding Sousa's Invincible Eagle and an old "missing" gasoline engine, with the muffler off. Polly surely came from the Cannibal Isles, for he exts fur, flesh, fowl, fruits, seeds, grain, old bones, clothespins, and door knobs. He belongs to the Order of Climbers; and he does not belie his classification, for with bill and claw he shins up the bare wall of a room and eats off the tops of doors and cabinets. He throws tin, china, cut glass and bottles on the floor with his playthings of pans, dippers and waterpails, in one sad burial blent. Though our red macaw is really a household pet, he is so destructive and makes such an infernal noise, that we may change his diet to arsenic and place him side by side with his blue and gold congener in the Quail Trap collection of parrots.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The aeroplane can make better speed than the automobile, but can not run so long or so often.

The present congress has already made a name for being short on time and long on words.

The fact is noted that at fifty-two the kniser still keeps the ends of his montaigness and in the absence of northern protective earth, all game is having a better chance for existence. And it is part of my dally routine to go through our woods and outlying groves and kick down all deadfalls and other traps which kill many jays and now and then a useful bird. I took three crushed quail from a stone trap on Rose Hill. Ledyard, and four half-stown crushed bobwhites from a figger-four. on Groton Long Point. I knew of a ruffed grouse from a Noank deadfall sold in Fulton Market. New York, for 80 cents by a lobsterman—a violation of game laws in both spaces.

The fact is noted that at fifty-two the kniser still keeps the ends of his spaces. Not a Humparian partridge has been reported in this region; but ring necks do breed parely, for Mrs. Rawson has seen the hen pheasants leading their young across the woodland paths. Mr. C. M. ### For Wounds and Abrasions

No matter how slight a skin abrasion may be there here exists a chance for invasion of some deadly disease germ. Many serious cases of illness and even death result annually from blood poisoning.

Because it is a perfect germicide, it not only cleanses thoroughly, but absolutely kills any germs that have already attached themselves to the wound, besides making the hurt immune from such foreign troubles in the future.

Grew a Full Growth of Hair on a Bald Head

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling dut and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely baild. About four menths ago! commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep ou using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement. STEPHEN BACON. Rochester, N. Y.
